Here is my suggestion for inclusion in Reward Homes. I understand Neil wishes to take a photograph of our (4KWh) installation which will complement the undernoted.

We were very impressed with the detailed knowledge and ability to explain the FiT arrangements when the local representative called to discuss (i.e. not necessarily sell) the Affordable Solution. A quotation was provided after looking at the various options and systems that provided the best value for money both in terms of installation cost and also the ROI (return on investment).

The installation went entirely smoothly and was accomplished in six hours – not bad for the maximum size home system and before the contractors left we had already earned 42.8p!

All the necessary paperwork was provided to enable us to call our current (excuse the pun!) suppliers – British Gas – and two telephone calls and one set of emails had our system linked in to the grid within 48 hours.

For us it is early days of course but the number of KWh being produced is almost exactly 25% higher than the estimated number according to Affordable. I am a keen meter watcher too and our consumption (from the grid) is down by 48%. These amazing numbers will of course change in the winter but hey – lets make hay while the sun shines!

I would recommend anyone who is serious about saving the environment or wanting a decent tax free income to get wired in straightaway or risk losing the best return from the current (oops there I go again) FiT.
